

EULENBURG TRIAL BEGINS IN BERLIN

orite of Kaiser Must Answer Charge of Perjury in German Court.

UGHT TO ROOM AGGARD AND WORN

alm Sends Special Representative to Make Report on Proceedings of Case.

BERLIN, June 29.—The trial of Prince Philip Eulenburg, formerly the Kaiser's favorite and the most powerful man behind the scenes in Germany, on a double charge of perjury and inciting others to commit perjury, began today in the central criminal court amid the most dramatic suggestions.

After the preliminary formalities had been concluded there was a conference before the court and counsel and it was decided to conduct the trial behind closed doors, excluding members of the press. The decision was a bitter disappointment to the public, which had counted on being regaled by the salacious testimony.

The court room could accommodate but a small part of the crowd that had stood about the building since daybreak, awaiting the opening of the doors. No women were permitted as the trial promises a wealth of testimony that is considered improper for women to hear.

Creeps to Court Room. The appearance of the prince was pathetic in the extreme. He was brought to court from the sick ward of the prison where he had been confined for eight weeks. He was in an invalid's chair and was lifted from this by his son, Count Sigward Eulenburg, and his doctor.

The judge allowed Eulenburg to recline in a chair in the middle of the court room instead of placing him in the dock. His beautiful wife sat by his side and his two sons held his hands in an effort to console him, but they had to leave when the judge announced his exclusion order. The trial is expected to last two weeks.

His head was bent and he crept, rather than walked, into the presence of his judge. Eulenburg's trouble arises out of the charges made against him and others by Maximilian Harden, editor of the Zukunft. Harden accused Eulenburg and other members of the "Round Table" of the grossest immoral practices and perversions.

When these charges were discussed at the trial of the newspaperman Brandt, who libeled Prince Eulenburg in 1907, Eulenburg appeared and made a denial of Harden's charges. At the second trial of Count Eulenburg, Eulenburg again denied the charges.

Brought Libel Action. Last April Editor Harden brought libel action against the proprietors of a South German newspaper and in the trial two witnesses were produced who substantiated the charges against Eulenburg in every detail.

One of the witnesses was Herr Ernst, a retainer on Eulenburg's South German estate, and the other a fisherman named Riedel. These men will be the chief witnesses against Eulenburg. It is charged that Eulenburg wrote letters to both of them offering them rewards if they would commit perjury.

The Kaiser is taking interest in the charge, as a number of men formerly his closest associates are involved. The Kaiser has commissioned Count Cullath to attend the trial and make a full report of the case to him, wishing to rely even on the court's record for his information.

ADVERTISING FAKES HURT PUBLICATIONS Periodicals With 25,000,000 Circulation Denied Second-Class Privilege by Postoffice.

Lottery and prize contest promoters are running to cover under a sharp campaign now being conducted against them by the Postoffice Department. It is estimated that the close scrutiny now exercised over all publications has resulted in the exclusion from the second-class privilege of periodicals aggregating 25,000,000 circulation. These were all publications, bulging with "free" offers and prize contests akin to lotteries.

The department also is demanding stricter compliance with the second-class rules in regard to requiring paid-in-advance subscriptions before admitting to entry. In another branch of the department, postoffice inspectors are busy watching advertising fakes. Among all the varieties of fakes uncovered by this branch of the service, by far the most plentiful is the astrological, the psychological, clairvoyant, or seeress fraud. These are the folk who advertise a complete individual life-reading "from the stars" for a small sum.

The Postoffice Department has issued a fraud order against the Progressive Advertising Company, of St. Paul, Minn. It is said that the company advertised for representatives of the company to be paid at the rate of $20 per week to distribute advertising matter and take signs.

To all who applied it was stated that a membership fee of $1 was required to get in line for the good things the company had in pickle. The investigation by the department disclosed the fact that there were no jobs held in leech by the company, and that nothing ever was done toward securing employment for customers after the preliminary fee was received.

R. P. NEVIN DEAD; FOUNDED PAPER

PITTSBURGH, June 29.—Robert Peebles Nevin, aged eighty-eight, the Nestor of Pittsburgh journalism, is dead. Mr. Nevin was a son of John Nevin, of Shippensburg, and was born July 21, 1820, in that town.

In 1870, with a desire to make a place in the journalistic world for his nephew, the late Col. John I. Nevin, he purchased an interest in the Sunday Leader, and in 1880 he founded the Pittsburgh Times. He retired from newspaper work a number of years ago. He was the father of Ethelbert Nevin, the famous composer.

Romance of Childhood Ended By Sad Drowning of Fiance

John McCalip's Body Goes to His Sorrowing Indiana Sweetheart.

When Miss Julia Hanna, happy in contemplation of her approaching marriage, received last night in her Indiana home, a Washington telegram saying that her fiance, John McCalip, had been drowned in the Potomac, a romance that had brightened the lives of the two since childhood was lost in the vale of the night.

This afternoon, instead of young McCalip starting upon his wedding journey, loving friends will escort his dead body to the little town of Crawfordville, where the scene of his life's romance was laid, and where today sweetheart and boyhood friends await it. There it will be interred tomorrow afternoon. The body will leave Washington at 4 o'clock over the Chesapeake and Ohio, arriving at Crawfordville twenty hours later.

The tragic death of McCalip, which occurred in sight of two companions who had accompanied him on a yachting trip down the Potomac yesterday morning, and who were unable to reach him before he sank, constitutes a peculiarly pathetic story.

Father Tells Story. His father, Frank McCalip, gave the following account today:

"My son left Washington Saturday afternoon in company with Harold B. White and A. G. Mann, two fellow-electricians employed at the Senate office building. Recently my son and Mr. White bought a yacht, since which time my boy, who was twenty-two years old, has practically lived on the river when not at work. Somehow, I did not want him to go Saturday afternoon, and after he had packed his grip he came back an hour or two, and I expressed regret that he had planned the trip.

However, the boys left with Colonial Beach as their ultimate destination. Saturday night they cast anchor in Broad Creek, a short distance below Alexandria. My White, one of his companions, tells me that all intended to get up at 6 the next morning for an early morning swim. They set the alarm clock for that hour, but my son was the only one to get up. Sleepily, the other two watched him climb overboard, and I and another were awakened a few moments later by a cry for help. They saw John 300 yards down the river floundering in the water. Before he could row to him he had gone down.

There is little else to tell. His body was recovered by a harbor police officer. Mr. White and Mr. Mann had exhausted every effort themselves to locate it. The tide, I understand, was coming in swiftly, and doubtless carried my son farther than he intended. Possibly he took cramps. Mr. White and Mr. Mann

Train, King Street This Morning.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU, ALEXANDRIA, VA., JUNE 29.

The body of an unidentified white boy, about eighteen years of age, was found lying beside the railway track on the embankment at the head of King street this morning. The youth had been struck by a train, but there were no witnesses to the accident. There was nothing about the body to indicate his name or residence, with the exception of the label in his coat, which was as follows: "No. 70,182. Belk Bros., Charlotte, N. C. Made for Dr. G. R. Bridges."

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Wheatley, and prepared for burial. Coroner Ashton, of Alexandria county, has summoned a jury to meet at Wheatley's undertaking rooms, this afternoon.

Infant Dies. Maxine Kaderley Goods, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Goods, died at her parents' home, 1109 King street, yesterday morning. The funeral was held from her parents' home this afternoon.

"Blue Law" Disobeyed. Alexandria was not entirely dry yesterday. The police were active in the enforcement of the blue laws, but Richard Gibson, a druggist at the corner of King and Alfred streets, kept his store open and dispensed soda water to thirsty Alexandria, which resulted in him being cited to appear in the police court this morning.

Mr. Gibson entered a plea of guilty in the police court and Justice Caton fined him $2 under the city ordinance forbidding the sale of anything except ice, milk and drugs on Sunday.

The corporation court was busy today on the case of Creagan against the Washington, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon Railway Company. Creagan is represented by L. P. Harlow, while J. R. Caton and John P. Barbour appear for the railway company.

Timothy Madden and Charles Eaton were before Justice Caton in the police court this morning charged with assaulting Peyton Ballenger. The justice dismissed the charge of assault, but sent the men to jail for sixty days on the charge of vagrancy.

Mrs. Eugenie Snelling, wife of Joseph D. Snelling, died at her home, 32 Wolfe street, yesterday. Mrs. Snelling was twenty-two years of age, and was quite popular. Her remains will be sent to Frederickburg for burial tomorrow.

The Alexandria Light Infantry will hold a drill at Armory Hall, and the new military company will meet at McBurney's Hall, this evening. The new military company will be mustered into service of the State in a few days.

The Rev. J. R. Sevier, of the Second Presbyterian Church, this evening delivered a sermon on "Does Alexandria Want a Sabbath Rest?"

The Young Men's Sodality Lyceum will give a moonlight excursion on the steamer Jamestown Tuesday, July 14.

At the Methodist Episcopal Church South last evening the Rev. J. Howard Wells conducted the services.
